章节摘录

Make out a list of your companys products and services and describe each one. Take each product and service and describe their purpose , how a customer would use it , and the benefits they offer. Step 3 Detail the "lifeline" of each product and service. If your products and services are known for their longevity , explain the reliability and strengths of its consistency and durability. If your products and services are known for their ease in disposability , explain the economic value and minimal upkeep required to use the product. If your products and services are known for their ability to change as technology changes , then explain their ease of adaptation and upgradeable capabilities. Step 4 Protect your trade secrets and inventions. Step 5 Organize your list of products and services in a bullet format that would easily and quickly describe your products and services to an end user.
