<<中国古塔>>

内容概要

As an architectural form, the pagoda first appeared in India. Arriving in China along with the spread of Buddhism, this special type of structure soon began to take on Chinese characteristics in its form and use, and integrate itself with China's own building style, making it a unique architectural form in ancient Chinese civilization. The author, Luo Zhewen, is a prominent specialist in ancient Chinese architecture. The result of his arduous study and field research, this book gives a detailed and illustrated introduction to the development, structure, uses and features of China's ancient pagodas, as well as more than 200 typical examples throughout the country. Academic-yet informative and interesting-this book will serve well as a reference for specialists, researchers and fans of ancient architecture.

作者简介

Luo Zhewen , a native of Yibin of Sichuan Province , was born in 1924. Admitted in 1940 to the China Construction Society , China's only academic organization engaged in the research of ancient architecture at the time , he studied under Liang Sicheng and Liu Dun zhen , the late celebrated architects. In 1948 , he finished his postgraduate studies at China Architecture Research Institute. From 1950 , he served , successively , as secretary and head of the Cultural Relics Section , director of the Research Office of Cultural Relics Archives and Information , and director of the China Research Institute of Cultural Relics of Cultural Relics Bureau under the Ministry of Culture , and the State Bureau of Cultural Relics. He is now head of the Group of Ancient Architecture Specialists , and senior engineer at the State Bureau of Cultural Relics; vice-president of the standing committee of the China Cultural Relics Society , and vice-president of the China Great Wall Society. He was a member of the 6th through 8th National Committee of the Chinese People's Political Consultative Conference.

Long engaged in research of cultural relics and ancient architecture , as well as their protection and management , he has been named as a national specialist of cultural relics and ancient architecture with outstanding achievements. His works include History of the Great Wall , The Great Wall , A Brief History of Ancient Architecture in China and China's Imperial Tombs and Mausoleums.
