<<老南京城|旧影秦淮(英文版)>>

内容概要

When he was alive my grandfather often told a story about a friend of his who was a noted scholar. Whenever the scholar went into a bookstore or library, he would shake his head in disappointment, complaining that there were no books appropriate for him to read. Such an attitude was a typical drawback often associated with noted people in society. I have sometimes come across people with the same prejudices. They are not really highbrow scholars. In fact they may not even be mediocre scholars, but they always complain they can find no good books to read. With strong words, they mock bookstores, libraries and all those who write, compile and edit books.
