<<怎样写行书>>

内容概要

Running script can be executed quickly and at the same time is easily recognisable . It is the most practical calligraphy style for daily communication . Learners of Chinese language who have some command of the regular script calligraphy will find it rewarding to learn running script . Once a student of both the Chinese language and calligraphy masters this style , he or she will write a beautiful hand at a fairly quick speed . If we compare the regular script with learning to walk , the study of running script will make a dancer . Specially prepared for Western readers , this book has detailed information about the tools required , the ways of controlling the brush and will guide the reader through the execution of running script calligraphy , together with enlightening comparisons of both regular and running scripts .
