章节摘录

Before the development of a medium of exchange , people would barter to obtain the goods and services they needed.

Barter is a type of trade in which goods or services are directly exchanged for other goods and /or services , without the use of money.

It can be bilateral or multilateral , and usually exists parallel to monetary systems even in most developed countries , though to a very limited extent.

Barter usually replaces money as the method of exchange in times of monetary crisis , when the currency is unstable and devalued by hyperinflation.

The mechanism of barter works the following way : two individuals , each possessing a commodity the other wanted or needed , would enter into an agreement to trade their goods.
