内容概要

The year 2010 was an eventful one in China's peaceful development. We successfully hosted the Shanghai World Expo and the Guangzhou Asian Games and Asian Para Games; overcame natural disasters such as the devastating earthquake in Yushu , Qinghai and the massive mudslide in Zhouqu , Gansu; and at the same time maintained steady and sound economic and social development. We successfully held the 5th Plenum of the 17th CPC Central Committee. The plenum deliberated on and adopted the Proposal for Formulating the 12th Five-Year Plan for China's Economic and Social Development , a new blueprint for China's development. The year 2010 was one of both challenges and progress in China's diplomacy. Under the leadership of the CPC Central Committee and the State Council , we focused on serving the country's economic and social development. We made full use of international summits to push forward the reform of international economic governance mechanisms. We made innovations in diplomatic theory and practice , and approached all elements of our work in a holistic and coherent way. We effectively addressed all manner of foreign-related sensitive issues and emergencies , thus safeguarding national sovereignty , security and development interests and fostering a sound external environment for domestic development. We deepened win-win cooperation and continually expanded political , economic , cultural and people-to-people exchanges with major countries , neighboring countries and developing countries. We are playing an increasingly important role in multilateral cooperation and the handling of hot-spot issues. We have closer connections , interactions and cooperation with the rest of the world , and our international influence is in the ascendant.

章节摘录

版权页：插图：At the invitation of President Nicolas Sarkozy, President Hu Jintao paid a state visit to France from 4 to 6 November 2010. During the visit, President Hu Jintao had several meetings with President Sarkozy, met with Prime Minister Fillon, Senate President Larcher, National Assembly President Accoyer and former President Chirac, engaged widely with all sectors of the two countries, attended the signing ceremony of cooperation documents and visited relevant commercial projects. Before the visit, President Hu Jintao gave a written interview to Le Figaro and answered questions regarding China-France relations, China-EU relations, the G20 Seoul Summit, China's development path and direction, and the international order in the 21st century. In his talks with President Sarkozy, President Hu Jintao spoke positively of the progress in China-France relations and stressed that in the context of profound and complex changes in the international landscape, China wanted to give new substance to its relationship with France, and build it into a mature and stable comprehensive strategic partnership oriented to the world based on mutual trust and mutual benefit, which would help forge equal partnerships between major countries under new circumstances. President Hu Jintao made a four-point proposal. First, respect each other and deepen strategic mutual trust. The two sides should deepen mutual understanding through high-level mutual visits and intergovernmental, parliamentary, party-to-party and local exchanges, respect each other's core interests and major concerns while bearing in mind common interests, promote cooperation across the board, appropriately handle differences and seek sustained and steady growth of bilateral relations. Second, keep up with the changes of the times and innovate models of practical cooperation. The two sides should expand bilateral trade with a goal of reaching 80 billion US dollars in 2015, and further encourage two-way investment by providing a more convenient and attractive investment environment to each other. At the same time, efforts should be made to boost cooperation in nuclear power and aviation, unleash cooperation potential in energy efficiency, environmental protection, new energy, new material, electric vehicle, information and communications, high-end equipment manufacturing and finance, and develop new drivers of cooperation to transform and upgrade the bilateral business ties and reinforce the economic foundation of China-France relations.
