章节摘录

“ I know what you want , ” said the sea witch.

“ It is stupid of you , but you shall have your way , for it will bring you to grief , my pretty pnncess.

You want to get rid of your fish-tail , and to have two supports instead of it , like those the people of the earth walk with , so that the young prince may fall in love with you , and you may get him and an immortal soul.

“ And with tlus the witch laughed loudly and disagreeably , so that the toad and the water-snakes tumbled down to the ground , where they crawled about.

“ You come just in time , ” said the witch : “ after tomorrow at sunrise I could not heip you until another year had gone by.

I will prepare a draught for you , with which you must swim to land tomorrow before the sun rises , and seat yourself there and drink it ; then your tail will pafll in two and shrink in and become what the people of the earth call beautiful legs , but it will hurt you-it will seem as if you were cut with a sharp sword.

All who see you will declare you to be the prettiest human being , they ever beheld.

You will keep your graceful walk ; no dancer will be able to move so lighdy as you ; but every step you take will be as if you trod upon sharp knives , and as if your blood must flow.

If you will bear all this , I can help you.

“ Yes !

” said the little sea maid , with a trembling voice ; and she thought of the prince and the immortal soul.

“ But , remember , ” said the witch.

“ when you have once received a human form , you can never be a sea maid again ; you can never return through the water to your sisters or to your father ’ s palace ; and if you do not win the prince ’ s love , so that he forgets father and mother for your sake , is attached to you heart and soul , and tells the priest to join your hands , you will not receive an immortal soul.

On the first morning after he has married another , your heart will break and you will become foam on the water

” “ I will do it , ” said the little sea maid ; but she became as pale as death.

“ But you must pay me , too , ” said the witch , “ and it is not a trifle that I ask.

You have the finest voice of all here at the bottom of the water ; with that you think to enchant him ; but this voice you must give to me.

The best thing you possess I will leave for my costly draught !

I must give you my own blood in it , so that the draught may be sharp as two-edged sword.

” “ But if you take away my voice.

” said the little sea maid , “ what will remain to me ?

” “ Your beautiful form , ” replied the witch.

“ your graceful walk , and your eloquent eyes : with those you can take captive a human heart.

Well , have you lost your courage ?

Put out your little tongue , and then I will cut it off for my payment , and then you shall have the strong draught

” “ Let it be so.

” said the little sea maid.

And the witch put on her pot to brew the draught.

“ Cleanliness is a good thing , ” said she and she cleaned out the pot with the snakes , which she tied up in a big knot ; then she scratched herself , and let her black blood drop into it , The steam rose up in the strangest forms , enough to frighten the beholder.

Every moment the witch threw somedung else into the pot ; and when it boiled thoroughly , there was a sound like the weeping of a crocodile.

At last the draught was ready。

It looked like the purest water。

“ There you have it , ” said the witch。

And she cut off the little sea maid ' s tongue , so that now she was dumb , and could neither sing nor speak。

“ If the polypes should lay hold of you when you are returning through my forest , ” said the witch ,
“ just cast a single drop of this liquor upon them , and their arms and fingers will fly into a thousand pieces。

” But the little sea maid had no need to do this : the polypes drew back in terror when they saw the shining liquor , that gleamed in her hand as if it were a twinkling star。

In this way she soon passed through the forest , the moss , and the rushing whirlpools。

She could see her father ' s palace。

The torches were extinguished in the great dancing-hall , and they were certainly sleeping within , but she did not dare to go to them , now that she was dumb and was about to quit them for ever。

She felt as if her heart would burst with sorrow。

She crept into the garden , took a flower from each of her sisters ' flower-beds , blew a thousand kisses towards the palace , and rose up through the dark blue sea。

The sun had not yet risen when she beheld the prince ' s castle and mounted the splendid marble staircase。

The moon shone beautifully clear。

The little sea maid drank the burning sharp draught , and it seemed as if a two-edged sword went through her delicate body。

She fell down in a swoon , and lay as if she were dead。

When the sun shone out over the sea she awoke , and felt a sharp pain ; but just before her stood the handsome young prince。

He fixed his coal-black eyes upon her , so that she cast down her own , and then she perceived that her fishtail was gone , and that she had the prettiest pair of white feet a little girl could have。

But she had no clothes , so she shrouded herself in her long hair。

The prince asked who she was and how she had come there ; and she looked at him mildly , but very mournfully , with her dark blue eyes , for she could not speak。

Then he took her by the hand , and led her into the castle。

Each step she took was , as the witch had told her , as if she had been treading on pointed needles and sharp knives , but she bore it gladly。

At the prince ' s right hand she moved on , light as a soap bubble , and he , like all the rest , was astonished at her graceful swaying movements。

She now received splendid clothes of silk and muslin。

In the castle she was the snost beautiful of all ; but she was dumb , and could neither sing nor speak。

Lovely slaves , dressed in silk and gold , stepped forward , and sang before the prince 。 and his royal parents ; one sang more charmingly than all the rest , and the prince smile at her and clapped his hands。

Then the little sea maid became sad ; she knew that she herself ' had sung far more sweetly , and thought。

“ Oh !

If only he could know that I have given away my voice for ever to be with him。

” Now the slaves danced pretty waving dances to the loveliest music ; then the little sea maid lifted her beautiful white arms , stood on the tips of her toes , and glided dancing over the floor as no one had yet danced

。 At each movement her beauty became more apparent , and her eyes spoke more directly to the heart than the songs of the slaves。

All were delighted , and especially the prince , who called her his little foundling ; and she danced again and again , although every time she touched the earth it seemed as if she were treading , upon sharp knives。

The prince said that she should always remain with him , and she received permission to sleep on a velvet cushion before his door。

He had a page ' s dress made for her , that she might accompany him on horseback。

They rode through the fragrant woods , where the green boughs swept their shoulders and the little birds sang in the fresh leaves。

She climbed with the prince up the tough mountains , and although her delicate feet bled so that even the others could see it , she laughed at it herself , and followed him until they saw the clouds sailing beneath them like a flock of birds travelling to distant lands。

At home in the prince ' s castle , when the others slept at night , she went out on to the broad marble steps

。 It cooled her burning feet to stand in the cold sea water , and then she thought of the dear ones in the deep。

Once , in the night-time , her sisters came arm in arm。

Sadly they sang as they floated above the water ; and she beckoned to them , and they recognized her , and told her how she had grieved them all。

Then they visited her every night ; and once she saw in the distance her old grandmother , who had not been above the surface for many years , and the sea king with his crown upon his head。

They stretched out their hands towards her , but did not venture so near the land as her sisters。

Day by day the prince grew more fond of her。

He loved her as one loves a dear good child , but it never came into his head to make her his wife ; and yet she must become his wife , or she would not receive an immortal soul , and would have to become foam on the sea on his wedding morning。
