<<变革的力量:领导与管理的差异>>

内容概要

This book is the product of a research program in managerial/executive behavior which began with my doctoral dissertation on big city mayors. Other parts of that program have focused on the major contextual factors that shape the way in which managers act, executive careers, both the organizational and the power and influence aspects of managerial work, the history and behavior of a group of successful general managers, and corporate efforts to create a leadership capacity in their management hierarchies.
