章节摘录

Connie is a cautious driver and never drives too fast. She loves to drive. However, she had an accident while she was driving back to her cousins house after the soccer game. Mario, her cousins, and the children were talking about the game and how well Lou played. Everyone was having a good time when Connie stopped at a red light on Route 46. Suddenly a big black Buick crashed into the back of their car. The driver had been drinking and was driving 70 miles an hour. He attempted to stop, but he reacted slowly and it was too late. After the crash the children began to cry and Connie felt weak. Fortunately, everyone in both cars was wearing seat belts, and no one was hurt. Connie parked on the side of the highway, and everyone got out of the car. She asked the man for his license and registration and gave him hers. She could smell the liquor on his breath. While she was talking to him, one of her cousins hurried to a nearby diner and called the police. They came in five minutes. They questioned Connie and the other driver and quickly discovered that he was drunk. He could hardly walk or talk. The accident was obviously his fault, so he couldn't blame Connie. The police wrote an accident report and called a taxi to take the other driver home. He was too drunk to drive. The back of Connie and Mario's car was badly damaged. Of course, the other man's insurance company will have to pay for it. The damage to the Buick was slight because it was bigger and heavier. Connie was a little hesitant to drive, but she felt okay, so she got in the car and drove back to her cousins. They couldn't drive the car back to Chicago the way it was, so they brought it to a repair shop early the next day. The mechanic examined it and said it would cost $2,000 and take two days to repair. "But we want to start back to Chicago tonight," Connie reminded Mario. He said, "I know, but two more days in New Jersey won't kill us. Be grateful that no one was hurt."
