前言

Through its reform and opening to the outside world, China has worked an economic miracle and boosted its comprehensive strength, enhancing its standing in the international community. As more and more people around the world are eager to know and understand China, we have compiled the China Series, aiming to provide a shortcut for readers to get the basic facts about this country. The 12 titles in this series cover China's geography, history, politics, economy, culture, law, diplomacy, national defense, and society, as well as its science, technology and education; its environment; and its ethnic groups and religions. These writings will help readers acquire a basic knowledge of China. It is our hope that this series will enable readers to get a general idea about China: Chinese history, culture and civilization, which is the oldest continuous major civilization in the world; China's basic conditions—the world's largest developing country with a huge population, a country that is developing unevenly on a poor economic base; in light of these conditions, China is following its own path to sustainable development while learning from other civilizations; and China's future—led by the Chinese Communist Party, the Chinese people are focusing their efforts on economic development and carrying on reform and opening-up; they are building a harmonious society in their own country and working for a harmonious world with lasting peace and common prosperity.

章节摘录

插图：Customs are changing. There are good and bad customs, good ones can raise civilization, while a bad one may ruin one. The rule of natural selection is applicable here, but to change a custom is never easy. It is considered in the Western world that, Western culture is built from a toilet bowl, or modern civilization is built on private car.

Does a toilet bowl really bear much social significance?

Does a private car really have more importance than the space shuttle?

However, such inventions really have changed people's lifestyle, behavior and thinking style. Custom represents a stable lifestyle, backed by a specific social & cultural system, with underlying economic pattern. If the economic pattern is not changed, the cultural system will hardly change, so will custom.
