章节摘录

插图：The Monkey King embarked on his voyage, and after a few months, he hit the shore of a magic continent. He went into the town, asking for the master who can teach him immortality, and eventually came to an ashram ( hermitage ) . He asked to be accepted as a disciple. He was admitted as a novice, and was given the name Sun Wukong. As a novice, he had to take on a servant's work, such as cooking, sweeping, woodcutting, washing, and serving the master and the higher disciples. After a few years, he was able to learn some of the teachings by listening to the lectures while sweeping outside of the classrooms. A few years later, he was slowly admitted to the lectures. When he heard the first lecture, and understood its profound meaning, he was overjoyed, and jumped with joy. The Master chided him for frivolity, but Sun Wukong explained that he was so happy to hear the truth that he could not contain himself. The Master then asked him what he wanted to learn. Sun Wukong said he wanted to learn the way to achieve immortality. The Master said, "How about 'Shu' ( craft ) . ?

Sun asked what it does. The Master said it involves witchcraft and medicine. Sun asked if this would help with immortality and the Master said, "No." Sun said, "Then I do not wish to learn it." The Master said, "How about 'Liu' ( scholarship ) . It would enlighten you on many schools of thought such as Confucian, Taoist, Sophist, Political Scientist, and so on." Sun said he wondered if it would help gain immortality and the Master said, "No." Sun said, "Then I do not wish to learn it." After a few more suggestions, the Master was fed up, and he hit Sun with his rod three times and left the classroom holding the rod behind his back.
