章节摘录

版权页： The train clattered over points and passed through a station. Then it began suddenly to slow down , presumably in obedience to a signal. For some minutes it crawled along , and then stopped; presently it began to move forward again. Another up train passed them , though with less vehemence than the first one. The train gathered speed again. At that moment another train , also on a down-line , swerved inwards towards them , for a moment with almost alarming effect. For a time the two trains ran parallel , now one gaining a little , now the other. Mrs. McGillicuddy looked from her window through the windows of the parallel carriages. Most of the blinds were down , but occasionally the occupants of the carriages were visible. The other train was not very full and there were many empty carriages. At the moment when the two trains gave the illusion of being stationary , a lady in one of the carriages flew up with a snap. Mrs. McGillicuddy looked into the lighted first-class carriage that was only a few feet away. Then she drew her breath in with a gasp and half-rose to her feet. Standing with his back to the window and to her was a man. His hands were round the throat of a woman who faced him , and he was slowly , remorselessly , strangling her. Her eyes were starting from their sockets , her face was purple. As Mrs. McGillicuddy watched , fascinated , the end came; the body went limp and crumpled in the man's hands. At the same moment , Mrs. McGillicuddy's train slowed down again and the other began to gain speed. It passed forward and a moment or two later it had vanished from sight. Almost automatically Mrs. McGillicuddy's hand went up to the communication cord , then paused , irresolute. After all , what use would it be ringing the cord of the train in which she was travelling ?

The horror of what she had seen at such close quarters , and the unusual circumstances , made her feel paralyzed. Some immediate action was necessary-but what ?

The door of her compartment was drawn back and a ticket collector said , "Ticket , please. "
