章节摘录

Mr. Qiu nodded helplessly, "That's basically what it is, but as far as human beings are concerned, there are many different complicated factors. If you say dragons give birth to dragons, and phoenixes give birth to phoenixes, that's just not very scientific." Laughing Eyes picked up the thread of the conversation immediately, "Exactly !

That's exactly what I meant. Mr. Qiu is exactly right. What's the old saying ?

The dragon has nine sons, none of which are alike !

You stretch out your ten fingers and none of them are of the same length. How could they all be the same ?

" I was secretly astonished at the skill of Laughing Eyes, who made his original mistake the basis for what was correct. After a while, the mistake became someone else's, and he became the spokesman for the truth. Was this not "spouting nonsense" ?

But because he spoke with the force of justice, the victory was his. The right to speak was firmly within his grasp.

Lady Teacher had wanted to get a word in edgewise several times, but just couldn't get her two cents in. It would have been easy, to refute him, but the opportunity had already passed. Laughing Eyes had laid claim to the truth. How could you argue with the "truth" ?

All she could do was staring at him furiously and cracking sunflower seeds between her teeth.
