章节摘录

In the United States, dailies are more influential as people spend more on them. As the U.S.A. is a big country and American people are more interested in local issues, for a long time there are few national daily newspapers with really big impact. USA Today, started as America's first national daily general-interest newspaper in 1982 has gained popularity with efforts for many years. The use of color and graphics, shorter stories and simpler language, and focus on topics of sports and weather, improved its readability and made a significant impact on other newspapers. The Wall Street Journal, a financial newspaper and the Christian Science Monitor, focused on news interpretation and features about art and literature, are more specialized ones which fall into the category of national newspapers.      &hellip;&hellip;
