章节摘录

So those are some of the roles you might find yourself playing at various times in your life. But, I'm sure some of you are wondering what happens when there is a situation that arises which could be handled in, uh, different ways, depending upon which role you decide to act out. Understand what I mean?

Well, let me give you a couple of examples. I know many of you have part-time jobs. Well, have there ever been cases where your job has conflicted with school?

Probably. For example, assume that a student has a part-time job at a restaurant. His boss tells him to come to work at three the next day, but the student has class at that time. So, which role does he play—that of the student or employee?

He's conflicted. His choice will be determined by which role he chooses for himself. Here's another example. Perhaps one of my colleagues lives close by the school, which is very convenient since he has a wife and, oh, two young children. Suddenly, he gets a better job offer from a university thirty miles away. He could vastly improve his career prospects by taking the job, but he'd be home less often. He's got a role conflict, right?

Does he choose the role of father or employee?
