前言

In the process of the rising of knowledge economy and the economic globalization , international competition is becoming increasingly fierce , and the national core competitiveness lies in the capacity to foster , allocate and regulate intellectual innovation achievements and Intellectual Property (IP) resources . The practice of international socioeconomic development has exhibited explicitly that the competition in the future of the world is the competition of IP . The 11 th Five-Year Plan Outline , adopted at the 4th Session of the 10th NPC , proposed explicitly the strategy goal of building China into all innovative country . In the Outline , the increase of independent innovation capacity is taken as the strategic basis for the development of science and technology , and the center for the adjustment of industrial structure and the transformation of growth pattern . Efforts shall be made to improve original innovation capability , integration and innovation capability , and the capability for introduction , absorption , and renovation . As a basic system for encouraging and protecting innovation , and promoting socioeconomic development , IP system is becoming more and more important .
