章节摘录

Li Anning was tightly trapped , unable to move. Through the light in the crack , she saw her classmate named Li Yuanfeng sitting next to her. She shouted his name , reaching out her hand to hold his hand. She felt his hand seemed to be warm , but became ice-cold quickly. She saw three girls who used to sit beside her and got along well with her. They lay not far from her. She shouted their names loudly , but got no response. She thought that they had been passed out. She knew later that they died at that moment. Darkness soon fell. Li Anning's left leg was fractured. She waited in hunger , pain and fear as well. Some students gradually regained consciousness from the coma. She heard her classmate shouting , "Please hold on , the students from Class Seven of Grade One. We will go out." Even somebody was shouting , "We must study hard after going out." The sudden disaster let the children grow up in an instant. It was a long night. Buried under the ruins , somebody began to sing. Li Anning recalled , "We survivors are beginning to sing , we sang a lot of popular songs together." Children love pop music , which is requisite and inevitable during their growth. However , some adults do not think so. Li Anning remembered that they sang one song named the fairy tale , of which there was one line , "happiness and joy will be the ending". The line touched them greatly at that moment. Such lyrics encouraged Li Anning and many of her classmates to adhere to the last moment.
