作者简介

Paul Gauguin(1874-1903)took up painting full-time when he was 35 years old after an intense life as a sailor and a successful stockbroker His early painting is reminiscent of Pissarro while he was under the influence of the Barbizon painters Like all Post-Impressionist artists Gauguin passed through an Impressionist phase but became dissatisfied with the limitations of the style and advanced beyond it Symbolism was a reaction to Courbet's Realism and argued for an art that had the same eloquence directness and universality as a symbol an art that concentrated syntheses of impressions ideas and experiences Gauguin used intense unnatural color without any indication of a light source in the scene.
